PREFACE

In the Spring of 1900 was published the first edition of this Catalog. It was the result of six years of work on the part of an Alumni Committee, of which George Gluyas Mercer, '77, was Chairman, and which included Charles Roberts, '64, Edward Y. Hartshorne, '81, Barker Newhall, '87, and Franklin B. Kirkbride, '89.

This Committee was fortunate in securing the services of Professor Allen Clapp Thomas, '65, as Editor, and the accuracy and completeness of the original edition were largely due to his painstaking research. From the publication of the first catalog up to the time of his death, Professor Thomas carefully set down in the margins of the book such changes as came to his attention, and this annotated copy has been of great assistance to the present Committee.

The College Records and Alumni Notes from the files of the Haverford News and the Haverfordian have given much information, and the Endowment Fund Campaign, which brought a great majority of the Alumni into close communication with the College, opened a rich source of new material. Questionnaires covering all essential biographical details were returned by over 1450 matriculates during 1920, and in addition, a good deal of information was obtained about men who had died since graduation.

When all this information had been collated and put in the form adopted for the present edition, to each living matriculate was mailed a typewritten copy of his own history for corrections or additions. The present volume embodies the result of these inquiries.

The Committee wishes to express its appreciation to Miss M. Evelyn Babbitt for her assistance in the difficult preliminary work of research and collation, and to Albert E. Rogers, '21, Granville E. Toogood, '20, and Miss Jean F. Morton, for their care in the preparation of the manuscript and index. The proof was read by the Committee, which therefore takes the responsibility for any errata which may appear.

We believe that there is pride for every Haverfordian in this record of the men who, in College and after, for nearly ninety years, have been making the history of Haverford.

For the Alumni Association,

HANS FROELICHER, JR., '12 Chairman
L. ARNOLD POST, '11, Treasurer
STEPHEN W. MEADER, '13.

EDITOR'S NOTE

(Reprinted from the First Edition)

In the preparation of this Catalog great pains have been taken to secure accurate information. In a few cases it has been impossible to trace old students; but in many cases those whose addresses have been known have failed to reply to repeated requests, and their records have been made up from what data could be secured from other sources.

The names have been arranged by classes; that is to say, the name of a matriculate is put under the year in which his class graduated. Without doubt, some will be surprised to see themselves ranked with those whom they have never known, or of whom, perhaps, they have never heard; but, on the whole, this method of arrangement seemed to be the best.

For about twenty years after the opening of the institution the division into classes was very loosely observed. Apparently, students were not ranked according to any definite system. No catalogs were published until 1852. Lists of students were from time to time printed in the Managers' Reports, but irregularly; and these lists were not always divided into classes; while from 1843 to 1852, with a single exception, no lists whatever were published. These facts have made it exceedingly difficult to place some of the matriculates, especially those who did not complete the course. Records have been made up, therefore, from grade books, ledgers, etc.

Previous to 1877, the only degree conferred upon undergraduates was that of Bachelor of Arts; in 1877 the degree of Bachelor of Science was added, and in 1887 the degree of Bachelor of Engineering. Since 1891, however, the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science have been the only ones conferred.

It remains for the editor to acknowledge the great assistance given him by the active members of the Catalog Committee, two of whom have most kindly read the proof-sheets. Acknowledgments are also due to a number of the Alumni who have given information of much value; among these, Robert Bowne, '42, of New York City, and Mark Brooke, '96, of Radnor, Pa., should be specially mentioned. Thanks are also due to Dr. Edward T. Tucker, of New Bedford, Mass., and Gilbert Cope, of West Chester, Pa., for information most kindly furnished.

ALLEN C. THOMAS, A.M., '65,
Editor.

SKETCH

History of Haverford College

Haverford College, opened as Haverford School in 1833, was founded by members of the Society of Friends, residents chiefly of Philadelphia and New York, who wished to establish an institution of higher learning which should be in accordance with their religious opinions. Of the ten Quaker colleges now in existence in the United States, Haverford was the first to be established. Though the modesty or special views of those interested prevented them from calling the institution a college, collegiate instruction was given from the start. In 1856 the managers obtained a charter, giving Haverford the name and standing of a college with the power to grant degrees.

Temporarily suspended from 1845 to 1848 for lack of funds, Haverford has gradually acquired a substantial endowment, which makes possible generous compensation for its Faculty and comparatively low charges for its students. The munificent bequest of Jacob P. Jones received in 1897 is the largest single benefaction the College has received, while the Alumni Fund for the increase of salaries, completed in 1920, is perhaps the most significant. At the present time the invested funds of the College amount to about $3,250,000.

The physical plant of the College, centering about old Founders Hall, now includes 16 permanent buildings, built chiefly by gifts of individuals or of the Alumni at large. Five athletic fields are in quite constant use for the physical development of the students, who now number 225. Outside of the campus and assuring space for future growth, is a farm of upwards of 100 acres, making the total area of the College property 220 acres. The estimated value of this choice suburban property, with the solid buildings erected during the past three quarters of a century, is over $2,000,000.

More important are the facilities directly available for undergraduate teaching. The Faculty numbers 25, assuring rather intimate methods of instruction to small groups of students. The Library, generously endowed, contains about 87,000 volumes and receives about 220 periodical publications. The shelves are open to the students. The increased interest in natural science has recently made necessary the erection of adequate modern laboratories for chemistry, biology and physics.

It is likely that Haverford will remain for some time a small undergraduate college devoted to thorough instruction in the Arts and Sciences. For over twenty years it has admitted students only after examination of their intellectual qualifications. This practice tends to keep the numbers down, but the quality up. The moral welfare of the students has always been a matter of concern to the responsible officers of the College. Of recent years a considerable degree of self-government has been tried, with satisfactory results. The ancient custom of attendance at a brief meeting for worship in the neighboring meeting-house is still observed on the fifth day of the week and exercises a salutary influence upon the spiritual life of the college community.

The management of the College is vested in a Board of twenty-seven members elected by the Corporation. Though the management of the College is in the hands of members of the Society of Friends, it has never been dependent upon any organized group of the Society, and extends its facilities without distinction to a limited number of properly qualified young men, in whom Haverford seeks to develop "vigorous bodies, scholarly minds, strong characters, and a real religious experience."
